This week was an eventful one for our administration, teachers and students as we all prepare for our eagerly-awaited return to the classroom on Monday, April 19. This week certainly ended on a high note with National Social and Emotional (SEL) Day, a day that was celebrated throughout the district.

At Abraham Clark High School, students, staff and administrators began the day with a “Get to Know You” virtual breakfast session. Afterwards, students participated in various activities throughout the day to support emotional well-being.

Dr. Charles C. Polk Elementary School combined the culmination of Read Across America with National SEL Day this week as parents were invited to partake in the exciting SEL activities throughout the day that emphasized inclusive cultural experiences.

We are excited that our parents and students, along with faculty, were able to enjoy SEL Day through mindful and relaxing programs offered throughout the district.

Students at Leonard V. Moore Middle School had some extra fun this week with Wacky Hair Day. As Art Teacher Mira Septimus put it, no one does wacky hair day like L.V. Moore!

Washington Elementary School is welcoming spring with a read aloud and art activity for all students. Students picked up supplies this week for next week’s “Spring Lunch Brunch” on March 30 that will include school-wide reading and art activities.

Last week, Roselle preschoolers were able to mark World Down Syndrome Day by rocking their silliest socks to help recognize the need to encourage inclusion and acceptance among all people. Just take a look at those funky socks!

As a reminder, Spring Break is from Friday, April 2 through Friday, April 9. Thursday, April 1, is a half-day session for students and staff.
